BRIGHT SPOTS SEEN Laval's Sell-Out To Nazis May Be Break For Allies

By JOHN EVANS
NEW YORK, April 22.—(AP)—Pierre Laval, cursed by millions, may have sold himself down the river and done France and the United Nations a good turn by taking over the Vichy French government as an Axis-backed "collaborationist."

U.S. "Over The Hump" In Battle To Out-Production Axis War Plants

WASHINGTON, April 22.—(AP)—Donald M. Nelson, the United States war production chief, testified Tuesday that the United States is "over the hump" on military production, and in a few months will offset the equipment reserves built up by Axis nations.

Refreshment tells you it's the real thing

Drink Laval said "Coca-Cola". Taste its delicious goodness. Enjoy the happy after-sense of refreshment it brings. By just this experience of complete refreshment, millions have come to realize the quality of "Coca-Cola"—the quality of the real thing.

"National Treachery"

The people of Quebec are reported to have been told by one of their members of parliament: "It is an act of national treachery to conscript for overseas service the soldiers of a country with a population of 1,000,000 whose coat of arms is vaster and more difficult to defend than those of Europe."

Of course this may seem to be plausible, even reasonable. But examined carefully it implies a mis-statement of fact, and states a completely unwarranted assumption.

The implied mis-statement is that a "yes" vote at the plebiscite on Monday will be vote for conscription. It will be nothing of the kind. It will be a vote to restore to parliament its freedom to make use of any method which future circumstances may show to be necessary to raise troops for service outside Canada. Whether parliament will or will not employ conscription, only the future circumstances are to decide.

The assumption is that Canada can be best defended in Canada. Who knows that? Will be the best defense in Canada in two years hence? Mr. Lacroix, whatever his talents, is not gifted with the powers of a prophet. It may be—or it may not be—that at some future date Canada may be more effective to defend Canada outside than inside. A "yes" vote on Monday will not Mr. Lacroix's words, but it will be that if they see this to be the case they can act accordingly with the voter's approval.

Would it not be "national treachery" to say that in such circumstances parliament must not do what the nation's safety demands?

Making It Easy To Buy

The National War Finance Committee has announced some new methods to be used in selling bonds, war savings certificates and stamps.

One departure is that bonds, in denominations of $50 and $100, will be kept on hand at all times, instead of offering these only when a Victory Loan drive is on.

Another is that savings certificates will be put on sale "over the counter" in banks and business places, while the stamps will be sold in retail stores.

The public will surely welcome these efforts to make the purchase of war bonds, stamps, and certificates easier, and therefore continuous, more so than the great number of persons in all parts of the country who donate their money and services to the war effort, being made. The more money thus invested week by week, the less strenuous the periodic campaigns will be.

The object is to enable, or more than double, the amount of present incomes Canadians are putting into bonds, certificates and stamps.

J. P. Morgan has made a merger of the Atlantic and Pacific railways, and we have grown used to large orders, and systematic buying can accomplish unexpected things. Under the new arrangement, one will be able to buy bonds and stamps in advance in order to buy a bond; he can get the bond whenever he has $50 or $100 in hand. And the money can be used to buy bonds and stamps, and the like, people are to forget until attention is specially drawn to the matter.

Almost any plan which will be induced to "play back" present earnings into safe and profitable investment in Dominion bonds, certificates and stamps, justified by the results. This particular plan has the earmarks of a sane and sharp increase in the sales of all three types of securities.

Laval "Places" Himself

While Nazi firing squads murdered 20 French hostages at St. Nazaire and 30 more at Rouen, Mr. Laval told the French people the only way to "loosen our shackles" is to strike hands with the gunners and go into a slave's partnership with the boss gangster. It was a strange manifesto addressed by the former Premier to the people of Europe's greatest democracy. The symbol of the response France will make in good time was a bomb thrown at a Laval speaker in a Rennes theatre.

The speech of Laval was characteristic. It served one useful purpose completely. It "placed" Laval as a man, merely a pro-Nazi speech. It was bitterly anti-British, anti-American, anti-Russian, anti every country which wants to maintain its own freedom and to see France restored to the independence, prestige and wealth of which it has been deprived. It confirmed the world's opinion of Mr. Laval and the treachery to humanity of which he is capable.

It revealed also how poor an excuse even a clever man may have to offer for playing the part of traitor. The only reason this ingenious trickster could find for trucking to Hitler was the inability to destroy Russia, communism would sweep over Europe. Who started this war anyway? Even the most brazen liar outside the Axis tried to keep his hands clean could not lay that charge against Russia. Every Frenchman knows that the power which is trying to "rescue" Europe is not Soviet Russia but Nazi Germany.

The Laval apology blows down to this: France should side with the Axis, because if the victim should be able to rise to the thug he would himself become a thug.

When that flimsy pretext is the best ingenious invention of excuses can think of, his countrymen will know as well as others what he cares for the future of France.

The bomb in the Rennes theatre prefigures the nation-wide explosion which will come the sooner because of this down-with-France speech from Hitler's man Friday.

Marshall Petain's friends are reported to have told him to keep the line clear for a sudden dash to Morocco. If so they gave him good advice. Mr. Laval is not a man to forget, nor to forgive, nor to pardon. He sees a chance to advance himself by ousting a superior; and whatever Laval plots against Petain will be backed by the gunnery and carried through with mercy or ceremony by the imported Gestapo.

Tokyo has allowed news to get abroad that a shake-up is in progress there because of the air raid of last Saturday. The defence department is said to be in process of reorganization from top to bottom.

The inference is that, as at Pearl Harbor and elsewhere, the Japanese security has been tumbled the defence forces into "unlabeled" and the raiders were not detected until the bombs began to fall. This report of a shake-up may be put out to catch the public, or it may mean that the higher-ups find it necessary to make scape-goats of some defence officials. In either case, it is further evidence that the disclosure of Japan's vulnerability has created considerable fluster at Tokyo.

It Duce has been giving the party a spring surge. For the reason, admitted in the Reich exhibition, Mr. Duce has been able to keep the hungry and angry public in a satisfactory state of quiescence. It is apparently no longer considered worth while to try to keep the outside world in ignorance that all is not well in the Fascist household. But that at some future date Germany is rather doubtful. Hungry people are not easily kept down, and to hunger there is added in Italy the knowledge that a Hitler victory would mean the loss of any better future than slavery to a foreign master.

For both the plebiscite and social security are a bit too big to be employed in the nature of a quid pro quo. Each is something basic, fundamental and urgent. Each is an aberrant thought, though, to imagine that Ottawa and Edmonton are saying to each other, "You do this for me and I'll do this for you."

The urgency of the situation is such that the Government will have to adopt drastic measures to defend itself with or without the aid of the Canadian people. Something of A Mystery Back Of Simon's Retirement

NEW YORK, April 22—(AP)—There is an unemployment problem of considerable magnitude confronting the nation today. Al Simon, the unfrocked priest, who hung his gloves, rolled up his robe and kissed the boys along Lammer's Lane a sad goodbye.

From now on he will expose a little of his mind to nothing more than his soap, water and a safety razor.

His decision to quit boxing was reached suddenly and it was based upon reasons both physical and mental. Simon supposedly has been around for some time now by a mysterious lack of interest in it is reported also that his red-haired bride feared for his state of mind if he continued to be punched about at the current rate of exchange.

Just what line of endeavor Simon will turn to is a most potent question. He is qualified for many jobs as his life has been devoted to boxing, ice-cream and 350-pound pickle barrels. He is too big for the army and navy. Boris Karloff has a monopoly on the fight market and the Kentucky Derby nominations were closed more than two months ago. Al is out of practice on his violin, he is too old for professional football and he is a bit on the large for most offices. The coach guard could settle the problem nicely by handing him a lantern, stationing him somewhere on the Atlantic seaboard and using him for a lighthouse, the job wouldn't be too big, but Al would get a chance to stand up.

ACTION A REQUEST

Simon himself isn't particular what he does so long as he finds something that is remunerative and is accompanied by a woman. Actually, the closest I can come to thinking of a job that is both remunerative and is accompanied by a woman is boxing. In Al's case six months boxing would be particularly remunerative and action. But Simon claims he has realized that the news has caused more attention along Lammer's Lane than the unexpected appearance of a bill collector. The citizens of this old airt, great hands at putting it out and two together and arriving at 4,444,444, even now making over the age of the past month's earnings to find the real reason for the retirement.

It seemed that as recently as Sunday Abraham appeared on a radio show, informed his constituents he never felt better and elaborated quite somewhat as to how he would kick Harry Babs, Lou Nova and two other worthies he is scheduled to meet. It also seems relations between Al and Simon have been somewhat strained.

He could do that if Al's manager didn't happen to be Mr. Johnson, but a phony retirement—if it is phony—would cut no figure with the boy himself. Jimmy is a man man with a contract. I would say Simon has no more chance of obtaining his release than a republican who was won by a rabid and certainly he would improve his lightning calculation exercise, if he absorbs another such

CANADIAN SPORTSHOTS

TORONTO, April 22—(CP)—Men of the armed services have done as well as full-time figures in Canadian sports that for the first time reported also that his red-haired bride feared for his state of mind if he continued to be punched about at the current rate of exchange.

Popular athletes of today will be even more popular at $10 a year (instead of $80 a week for good amateurs or $5,000 a year for good pros). Millions more will be in uniform. Professional ranks will be decimated, if not eliminated.

Dave Dryburgh, Regina leader, said "Edgar (Port Arthur) Sprague still rates as the best amateur in Canada. I haven't been able to teach."

Jack Katon, of Lethbridge, is travelling with Frank Turner's wrestling stable or do wrestlers travel in schools, like nuns? or two together and arriving at 4,444,444, even now making over the age of the past month's earnings to find the real reason for the retirement.

Behind the confidence of Ottawa authorities that a beef famine is not to be expected are figures they quoted today showing that the number of cattle in Canada is the largest in recent years.

Mrs. T. Graham Heads Kiwanis Ladies' Club

MRS. THORNTON A. GRAHAM was named president of the Kiwanis Ladies' Club at the club's annual meeting at the home of Mrs. A. L. Burrows, 1140 8th avenue, on Monday. The meeting marked the conclusion to the past year of work for the club, which serves not only as an auxiliary to the Kiwanis Club of Edmonton, but also as a war work group.

Reports of the year's activities were read. Following this, the retiring executive, Mrs. W. F. Faulkner, president; Mrs. F. J. Folliott, secretary; and Mrs. C. C. McDaniel, treasurer, were presented with gifts of pins.

Others on the executive to serve during coming year are: Mrs. A. L. Burrows, vice-president; Mrs. C. A. H. secretary; Mrs. F. J. Folliott, secretary; and Mrs. Douglas Jones, treasurer.

Activities of the club were highlighted by support of the Kiwanis Home for Children; the providing of Christmas trees for the children; and the furnishing of necessary clothing and extras for the home. Five of the girls in the home were enrolled in the C.G.I.T. during the year, four of whom were equipped and sent to the C.G.I.T. in the summer.

WAR ACTIVITIES

Highlights of war activities were reviewed in reports. During the year over $60 was contributed to the Queen Elizabeth fund for the purchase of clothing and extras for the home. Five of the girls in the home were enrolled in the C.G.I.T. during the year, four of whom were equipped and sent to the C.G.I.T. in the summer.

In March of last year, a refunding was begun and Mrs. E. J. McCarty, 1121 150 street, donated the use of a room in her home for members meet each week in carry on this work.

Apart from the regular monthly meetings, four social events were held: luncheon and benefit sales were held.

A TREE'S CAP DOES NOT

FLOW UPWARD IN THE SPRING

There is a popular idea that the sap of trees flows downward into the roots in the autumn and flows upward in the spring, but scientific says this is all a myth. In cutting trees one can observe that the centres of the tree are more moist in winter and the outside layers are more moist in the spring. The total amount of sap remains about the same, and this explains an old theory about cutting trees only in the winter to avoid moist lumber.

CARRYING baskets of duty primrose members of the Junior Red Cross will greet the public on Saturday in downtown Edmonton on the occasion of their annual Primrose Tag Day. This is their yearly effort to raise funds for the maintenance of the hospital for crippled children in Calgary. There are 4,000 members of the Junior Red Cross in the city who have made $100,000 in the past year.

Mrs. M. Marshall, secretary, says that particular care and pride have gone into the fashioning of these primroses this year, for the shortage of paper and wire have made it essential that there be no waste. In this the children have responded with enthusiasm and each flower has been cut and made with care.

On Thursday the primroses will be judged in the Museum of Art rooms in the Civic Block.

Mrs. J. C. Bowen, wife of H. H. Bowen, lieutenant governor, Mrs. John W. Fry, wife of H. H. Fry, the Mayor, Mrs. Frank E. Dymally, Mrs. Campbell Fraser, Mrs. Elmer E. Roper, Mrs. William J. Dick and Mrs. J. Boyd McElroy have been invited to judge the primroses.

Mrs. S. Israel is in charge of the day again this year. Headquarters are in the C.N.R. office on Jasper Avenue.

The program of the Junior Red Cross in Edmonton culminates each year in this tag day. Proceeds from the sale of the flowers goes promptly into the crippled children's fund.

Members add to their work for the crippled children by making and selling the flowers. They have made many beautiful aiglets which have been shipped to British Columbia. The Red Cross department in the city has self-denial funds to support both the work for the crippled children and their war work.

GAINING UPPER HAND IN BATTLE

COASTAL CONFLICT: Allies Slow U-Boat Offensive

Our side has begun to win the war on our side of the Atlantic as ship sinkings decrease and destruction of U-boats increases. Allied seamen have proved themselves valiant by forging through a period of hardship and heroism in sub-infested seas along the eastern coast. Oil tankers have gone down in flaming waters, as vividly illustrated: freighters, cargo ships, passenger vessels, sugar and coffee transports, and even tugs and barges also have been sunk. Now vigilant protective forces, patrolling coastal ship lanes, dimming shore lights, blacking out vessels at night, have gained an edge in the battle against the U-boats.

Paris In Spring—After R.A.F. Shower

Damage by Britain's current raids on France is typified by this on-the-spot picture of Paris after R.A.F. raid of March 3.

Opening Drive For Funds For Warships

London's Warship Week, the aim of which was to raise $500,000,000 was opened by Rt. Hon. A. V. Alexander, Britain's First Lord of the Admiralty, in Trafalgar Square. A dummy forecastle and superstructure of a battleship, called "H.M.S. Trafalgar," was erected. Every London district was given a warship to subscribe for. Here's a general scene at the opening in Trafalgar Square, showing Mr. Alexander at the microphones

Smart Wear For Wartime

Natalio Visari, unmarried designer of men's wear for the movies, comes through with this material-saving dream of blouse attached to cuffless trousers for male comfort—and wear.

That' ATS

Women buglers of Britain's ATS (Auxiliary Territorial Service) parade through Hyde Park, London.

Sees MacArthur

Brig.-Gen. Patrick Hurley, above, U.S. minister to New Zealand, has been in Australia conferring with General MacArthur.

Sharks often menace seamen lucky enough to survive a torpedoing. Some sailors in the Caribbean, afraid on pieces of lumber from their ship's cargo, kept the deadly fish away by flinging hunks of wood at them.

Submarine commanders sometimes surfaced to question survivors, hoping to get information about other ships in the vicinity. Others trailed lifeboats for hours, or even for several days, to try and pick off rescue vessels.

From Nova Scotia to tropical Trinidad, axis submarines have sunk more than 100 Allied vessels since Jan. 15. Many have been oil tankers, while freighters, cargo vessels, passenger ships and even tugs and barges also have gone down. Speculation that U-boats operate from bases at Dakar or in West Indies so far lacks confirmation.

American air and naval forces — Army bombers, Navy planes, blimps, destroyers and Coast Guard vessels, armed with guns and depth bombs — take an ever-increasing toll of underso raiders off our shores.

Bags Messerschmitt Despite Wound

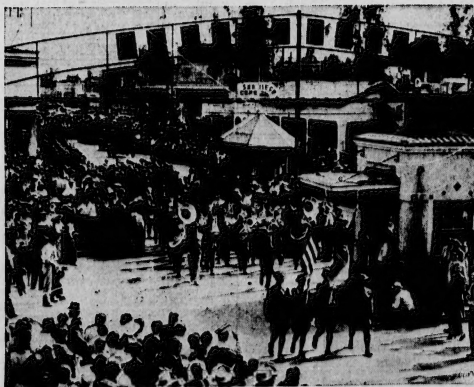

Sgt. W. J. "Happy" Perritt, 20-year-old air gunner from Vancouver, points proudly to the symbol, painted on his gun turret, which shows that he has one ME 109 to his credit. He is a member of an all-Canadian crew flying four-engine Halifax bombers in an R.A.F. squadron. On a raid over Bres, Perritt's aircraft dropped its bombs and, while still in its dive, was attacked by a Hun fighter which broke through the Spitfire escort and pumped bullets into the belly of the Halifax. Before the Nazi could get away, Perritt let him have an accurate burst and the ME spun to earth in flames. Another ME attacked and had its fuselage riddled—again by bullets from Perritt's guns. A third attacker was chased off by Spitfires. As the Giant Halifax roared homeward over the sea, Perritt asked the skipper if he might leave his turret. It was only then that it was discovered that the young gunner had been wounded by the first burst from the Messerschmitt he shot down. He is on the job again.

Meet Debutante No. 1 For 1942

They used to elect them (Brenda Frazier, Betty Gordon et al) "New York's No. 1 Glamour Girl," at the Stork Club's annual elections, but out of deference to the serious war times, Oona O'Neill, above, was chosen simply "Debutante No. 1" for 1942. The 17-year-old deb. daughter of playwright Eugene O'Neill, is five feet four, weighs 125 pounds.

Good Neighbors—Prove It

With bands playing and flags flying, the U.S. troops, above, march back across the border into Calexico, Calif., after a "Good Neighbor" visit to Mexicali, Mexico. The parade of Pan-American unity was sponsored by the War Departments of both countries.

Chinese quartermaster aboard the Empress of Japan, Ho Kan has received the British Empire medal for remaining at the wheel through severe bombing attacks.

Escape To Adventure

By Priscilla Wayne

CHAPTER XXXV.
RED came then around the corner of the house herding the Japs and sheep and half-dressed ahead of him.
Red was jubilant. "Pete, all three of the cars are hidden in back. There's an overhanging rock. It makes a natural garage. Why these people could have been hidden away for months here."
"We scolded their little plan," Pete declared exultantly. "Are the ears in condition?"
"Sure, so far as I know, and I've got a plan. We'll leave the Japs here and drive one car back with our prisoners and Judy. Of course we'll put the other cars temporarily out of commission."
"Good idea," Peter agreed. "The Japs up and let's get on our way. We can let the horses loose. They'll go back to the ranch. In the 10 or 15 hurried minutes during which they secured the Japs and carried out the rest of their plan, Peter scarcely looked at Judy."

RELIEF
She had seen the look of relief that leaped into his eyes when he assured himself that she was safe and unharmed.
But it wasn't the kind of greeting Judy had longed for, the kind of greeting she had had a right to expect. It was only an instant, the ecstasy she had known in his arms.
But Peter drove without speaking, seeming to see only the widening trail ahead.

Tears trembled in Judy's eyes. This was the end then of their brief ecstatic love-making. It had been too much to believe that a man like Peter—a young and handsome human giant could love a girl just for herself alone.
Red was very happy and very loquacious all of the way down into the village. "It's such a simple solution to the thing that I'll bet you the sheriff and all the deputies had for a loop when they hear about it," he chuckled.
"You mean the way you and Peter found us by yourselves?" Judy asked.
"I mean exactly that," Red declared. "It rounds exactly like a fiction story but it's too simple to be a fiction story. Mr. Dirkey just happened to remember that the dear little wife, Berthe, Red looked at the woman sarcastically, "fancied the cabin up at La Pison."

"He had strength enough to say so. Probably never crossed his mind that you planned it for some kind of hideaway, maybe to hide the things you've stolen."
"You'd better be careful what you say," Karl Krug said. He had not before opened his mouth since they left the cabin, but now the words seem to have been torn from him by anger. "You'll have plenty of things to prove you're making statements that can't very well be backed up."
They had left the narrowest, almost marked trail and had come down now almost to the village where the road was fairly passable.

"Look," Red said, "do you see what I mean?"
"If I see what you see," Peter said excitedly, "then I see the sheriff's car."
As it turned out, that was exactly what both of them saw. The sheriff very quickly explained to them how he came to be there.

CONSCIOUS INTERVAL
"Right after midnight," he said, "probably within an hour or so after you fellows arrived at La Pison, Mr. Dirkey had a very conscious interval. He seemed very strange and he talked quite freely."
"He asked for you, Peter. Dr. Wavil was there, and he didn't want to disturb you. Actually Dr. Wavil was simply walking the floor because he had discovered himself that you two had taken the horses and gone away."
"Then what?" Peter asked.

SHORTCUT
"Well, then your uncle told Dr. Wavil of the cabin at La Pison. I had heard of La Pison, of course, but I didn't know there was any hideaway there. I was just about to stymie here. The people here in the village don't even know about the cabin."
"Dr. Wavil called you then?" Peter guessed.
"Yes. As best your uncle could explain to Dr. Wavil, this hideaway was somewhere out of this village. We reasoned that it was where you'd gone on horseback and that you evidently knew a shortcut. We figured that if we came to the village here someone might be able to help us find the trail."
"I take it," Karl Krug said, "that you're an officer of the law?"
"Yes, sir, I am," the sheriff said, "and I'm very glad to meet up with you. I'm taking you back to Lost Mesa where charges will be filed against you."
"What charges?" Krug asked.
"Charges of attempted murder and kidnapping," the sheriff said, "and some other charges that come out of Los Angeles."

FINDING THE POWDERS
"In the last few hours the Los Angeles police have been putting a car and two together, and they make quite a lot of facts. One of the things you should have done was to send on that package of powders you all had prepared for Charles Dirkey."
"It was seized by the police when they searched your office. They found it in the drawer of your desk all tied up and neatly addressed to Mrs. Charles Dirkey, Lost Mesa, New Mexico."
"They found it yesterday morning. Undoubtedly today there'll be a report. It ought to be all the evidence we'll require."
"I'm willing to do whatever you say, officer," Karl Krug said with sudden meekness.
"Don't do what I say," the sheriff told his prisoner, "but if you obey me, Charles Dirkey, alias Berthe Werner, better take the car and go on that package of powders you all had prepared for Charles Dirkey."
"You'll probably need a crew of them."

FUNNY BUSINESS

"Every time his girl friend writes him a letter he doesn't like, he starts going around in circles—so I gave him my shoes in break in!"

LAFF-A-DAY

"We call him 'Bill' 'cause he was born on the first of the month!"
